

Poor Santa. We're putting him on one of those new low-card diets.

This Christmas we'll be swamped with offers, ads and invitations to buy more stuff. But now there's a way to say enough and join a movement dedicated to reviving the original meaning of Christmas giving.

Introducing Buy Nothing Christmas

Buy Nothing Christmas is an initiative started by Canadian Mennonites but open to everyone with a thirst for change and a desire for action.

Our website tells the whole story and offers a host of ways you can say no to conspicuous consumption and yes to true abundance this Christmas. We also offer posters you can download and post to start saving the planet one eyeball at a time.

Buy Nothing Christmas. It could be the most important thing you never do.
